The Dom Perignon brand is named after the blind Benedictine monk, Dom Perignon, who was believed to have invented the Champagne process at the Abbey of Hautvillers in France in the early 1700's. Since debunked by history, the brand is now owned by Moët et Chandon and continues to evoke the epitome of fine, deluxe vintage wines and remains sought after for its evocative label and bottle design as well as its rich complex flavours.

Tasting Notes:

The sweetness of tropical fruit instantly shines on the nose. It then cedes to more temperate notes, the tingle of orange zest, and the mist of a mandarin orange. The wine breathes, revealing its freshness. The wine immediately imposes its ample presence on the palate, full and massive. It is generous, firm and controlled. Then it contracts, letting the wine vibrate with spices and pepper.
